Summary of reasons for decision:

The image depicts a naked male and female whose positioning and her expression indicate intercourse. The Classification Office has considered whether the female subject is a young person. The age of the female is ambiguous and while there are aspects of her appearance that are youthful, she could easily be a young adult. As such, she cannot unequivocally be said to be a young person. However, the unrestricted availability of the image is still likely to be injurious to the public good. While the sex is not explicitly depicted, the image features a URL for a pornographic website. If children or young persons were to access the website they would be exposed to explicit sexual material. There is a common social consensus across many countries that explicit sexual material should be limited to adults because of the potential for harm to developing sexual attitudes and behaviours of young people from premature exposure to such material. If the image were to be submitted without a URL that allowed access to sexually explicit material it may well be classified differently. The image is therefore restricted to adults. This classification interferes with the right to freedom of expression as set out in the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 but is reasonable and justified in order to prevent injury to the public good.
